Mrs. F. Purvis was a visitor to Calgary over last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe were on a visit to friends at Calgary over last week end.

Mrs. McLeod was a visitor to Calgary Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Whist Drive and Dance on the evening of "Trafalgar Day" were a great success, clearing the decent sum of $63.80 for the funds of the British Red Cross Society.

Mrs. Stevens, the Milliner, will be in Crossfield with a good showing of Hats and Trimmings, on Saturday October 30th. This is probably the last visit this season. If you need anything in Millinery or Childrens Coats or Combination Underwear see her on that date.

Good crop reports are still coming in, Mr. Hugh Wylie reports a good crop of wheat. This week J. Gussolly threshed 825 bushels of No. 1 grade wheat off 17 acres, averaging 48½ bushels to the acre.

Patriotic Entertainment.—There is to be a Patriotic Entertainment given at the Abernethy School, on Friday Evening, November 12th. Everybody welcome. Come one, come all, and help a worthy cause.

Tax Payers of the Rural Municipality of Rosebud No. 280, are reminded that the penalty of $1.00 per quarter section, for the non-payment of Hall Insurance Taxes, is paid against them if the same is not paid before November the first next.

E. S. McRory, Sec.-Treas.

Dr. M. Mecklenburg, Optician and Expert Eye Specialist, will again be at Carstairs, next Friday, November 5th, and at the Drug Store, Crossfield, on Saturday, Nov. 6th. Charges moderate.

"Jack O' Lantern."—It having come to the notice of the authorities that some of the boys in the village have been playing with matches and running about with improvised lanterns, made with cigar boxes, etc. Parents are hereby warned, that they will be held responsible, should any damage arise through the fault of their children. We would advise parents to put a top to their boys getting hold of matches, as anyone can understand, a serious conflagration might easily occur should one of these flimsy boxes get alight, and there is no telling what the result might be. Be warned in time.

"Please, mamma, can I go over and play with Jimmie Brown?" "Why, Willie, of course you can't, you've got the mumps, and it's very very catching." "I know it. That's why I want to go over. Jimmie likes to stay home from school just as much as I do."

The Difference

Kipling could take a worthless sheet of paper and write a poem, and make it worth $10,000.

That's Genius.

There are some men who can write a few lines on a piece of paper and make it worth $50,000,000.

That's Capital.

A ditch-digger works ten hours and handles several tons of earth for $3.00.

That's Labour.

A woman can purchase a hat for $2.75, but prefers to pay $27.00.

That's Foolishness.

There are many concerns in the country who tell you they can serve you as well as your home merchant.

That's Nerve.

Everybody who is posted and want the best in Goods or Workmanship buy from us.

That's Common Sense.

Indian Patriotism

Indians of the Canadian West Are True Patriots

The excellent patriotic work of the File Indians at Carleton Place, Ontario, and the Canadian Pacific through W. R. Baker, the secretary of the company, has received another encouraging report. It was in October last year that 23 of those Indians subscribed $502.10 to the Patriotic Fund, each farmer giving a certain number of bushels of grain, which when sold amounted to the above sum. During the winter that followed the now famous File Indian Brass Band gave concerts thereby raising another $212 which went to the Belgian Relief Fund, and since March last, the Red Cross branch of this colony has raised $560 and endowed a bed in Cliveden hospital. The young Indians have done a great deal of knitting and sewing. The branch has a membership of 36 while there are only one hundred and sixty souls—thirty-eight men, twenty-six women and ninety-six children—in the colony. The patriotism of the File Indians does not stop here. Two young men went to the front with the second contingent, and six more are going with the next. The File Indians lay claim to having the oldest Red Cross Society member in the Dominion. This celebrated character says that he is the ripe age of 107, and on May 12 next will attain his 108th year. He is now an "associate member" of the Red Cross and proudly wears on his heart the little red cross, the emblem of the society.

Thrilling Deed by Airman

Suspended by One Arm From Machine to do Repairs

The thrilling story of an Australian air pilot, who clung by one hand to the framework of a disabled aeroplane, five thousand feet over the enemy's lines, while executing repairs with the other, was told in London by an officer observer on leave of absence, from Northern France.

"We had crossed the German lines and their guns were booming at us from way down below, when Cornstock (the pilot) noticed that our left wing was tilting down and not responding to the controls," said the officer.

"He swung out of the seat to the right side, but the plane continued to tilt and it looked as if we were going over soon. "Cornstock acted quickly. He let himself down with nothing but thousands of feet beneath him, holding tight with his right hand and fumbling with the control wires where they were jammed under the body of the machine. "The strain on his right arm must have been terrific. Seconds seemed hours as he awayed there, his legs dangling in space, while the machine swung over 'air bumps' and levered to the side.

"As a matter of fact it was all done in an instant. He was back in his seat, cool as ever."

An Open Letter

From a Well Known Methodist Clergyman of Interest to All Who Are Sick

One of the best known ministers in the Hamilton conference by Rev. Chas. E. Stafford, of Kiora, Ont., who freely admits that he owes his present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Stafford writes as follows: "Some years ago I was severely laid up for a period of nearly four months. The leading physician in the town in which I was then stationed diagnosed my case as one of complete nervous prostration, brought on by overwork and which superadded intercostal neuralgia and muscular rheumatism, from which I suffered the most excruciating pain, night and day, for weeks. So weak and helpless did I become, that my attendants had to handle me like an infant, raising me up and laying me down with the greatest care, so intense were my sufferings. Acting on the advice of my doctor, and taking his medicine, I did not seem to improve. One afternoon, while suffering great pain, the editor of the paper published in the town, and who was a member of the church of which I was then pastor, urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was sceptical as to the medicinal qualities of all proprietary medicines, but on the strong recommendation of the editor, who had great faith in the medicine, I decided to try them. To my great surprise and supreme delight I soon found that the Pills were giving me relief, and after I had taken seven boxes, I was fully restored to health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, under God, having made me well. Ever since I have been better and stronger physically than I had been for a number of years. Three years ago, after an active ministry of forty-six years, I asked the Hamilton conference of the Methodist church to grant me superannuation relief, which it did, but for more than two years, I have been supplying a charge which necessitates a drive of twenty miles every Sabbath. Today I am strong and hearty, without an ache or pain, and for my present physical condition I am indebted to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can most heartily recommend them to the afflicted."

Police Magistrate (recounting of ill-treated old offender in dock)—"All John, what's brought you here this time?" John—Two policemen, yer worship. P.M.—Drunk again? John—Yes, yer worship, both of them.

Ted—She wrote asking to break the engagement, and I don't know what to do.

Ned—Send her a diplomatic reply that'll keep her from coming over, and perhaps she'll change her mind.

French Aviator's Strategy

The new French system of handling the air fleet has greatly restrained the German air activities, according to a letter from a German aviator, printed in the Temps of Paris. He says:

"My squadron has been withdrawn because the French aeroplanes now appear only in large numbers, either for reconnaissance or to harry our scouts systematically. The latter task is accomplished thus: Ten machines patrol our line at a height of 2,000 metres and ten more at 3,000, but flying in the opposite direction, so that if the German scout tries to get through he is attacked by the nearest two Frenchmen above and below simultaneously, others joining if the two are incapable of stopping him. Their bombing is operated with similar numbers. We must follow their example or yield command of the air."

Strangled With Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. J. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there came comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

A Sentence Neatly Expressed

There is a great deal in putting a thing into a prison. It was sentenced some time ago.

"You have a pleasant home and a bright fire, with happy children sitting around it, haven't you?" asked the judge.

"Yes, sir," said the prisoner, who thought he saw a way out of the difficulty.

"Well," said the judge, "if the happy children sit around the cheerful fire, and you return they will stay there just forty-two days."

Bishop of Calgary Visits Crossfield.

Touching Tribute to the Memory of the late Lt. Col. Boyle.

At the Church of the Ascension, on Sunday morning last a solemn and impressive service was conducted by the Bishop of Calgary, assisted by the Rev. J. P. Dingle, when the vases presented by Mrs. Russell Boyle, in memory of her husband, the late Lieut.-Col. Boyle, were dedicated to the service of God and for the adornment of his house.

The service was attended by a congregation which filled the church, and many of the worshippers were unable to restrain their emotion as the Bishop made reference to the devotion and self-sacrifice of Colonel Boyle in laying down his life for the Empire in defence of the principles of honour, liberty and justice. "The memorial we have this day dedicated to God's service," said the Bishop, "will speak not only to our own generation, but to generations yet unborn, to the magnificent heroism of Col. Boyle and those who fell with him."

After the dedication service, a celebration of the Holy Communion took place, the Bishop leaving for Calgary on the afternoon train.

The Mystery of the Ravenspurs

By Fred M. White

Ward, Lock & Co., Limited
London, Melbourne, Toronto

The princess was regarding the shining stone with a besotted enthusiasm that seemed grotesquely out of place with her dress and surroundings. Perhaps this suddenly flashed upon her, for she carefully looked up the stone.

"You have done well, Ben Heer," she said, "and shall not go unrewarded. The worst part of our task is over, the rest is easy."

"Then the princess goes not back to Lassa," Ben Heer asked.

"Oh, not yet," she said. "Not till they are destroyed, root and branch to the smallest bit of the tree. I will not spare myself and I am not going to spare others. Yet there remains those of the accused race yonder, the Ravenspurs. They know too much, they have that which I require. I will kill them off—they shall die."

"As my mistress slew her husband when his life was of no more value to her?"

"Ah, so you know that. You would not reproach me, Ben Heer?"

"Does the slave reproach the master who keeps his carcass from the kennel?" Ben Heer asked, as he bowed low. "My mistress was right; her hands were washed whiter than the snow in the blood of a Christian. It was well; it was just."

"Then, you shall help me, for there is much to be done. Take this ring. Place it on your finger and go to the others. They are outside waiting—give them the call, that."

"The princess made a faint noise like the drowsy call of a bird and Ben Heer caught it up at once. He had heard it many times before. Then he slipped out like a cat in the darkness, and presently the call came from the gloom. A moment later it was answered and then all was still again."

Mrs. May, who had discarded the princess for a moment, closed her window, drew the blinds and lighted a cigarette. It was a glad night for her.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Geoffrey Gets a Shock

Ralph Ravenspur had wandered along the cliffs and Geoffrey had followed him. The latter came up to the blind man at the jettisoned part of the rugged gaff, and there for a time they sat. Ralph was graver and more taciturn than usual, till presently his face was raised and he seemed to be listening to something in the air.

"What is the matter?" Geoffrey asked.

"Somebody is close to us," Ralph explained. "Somebody is creeping up on us in the gorge. I can hear it. I can hear it. We are safe here on this bare ledge. There is one thing there is no cause to fear in this place, when he is out on the cliff. Ah, what did I tell you? Somebody is close to us."

A figure rose out of the gorge, a slender figure with a ragged beard and brown face, and he came along and dropped by Geoffrey's side.

"Don't be alarmed," he said. "It is only I—Tchigorsky."

Geoffrey was astonished, though he had no occasion to be. Ralph took the matter coolly. "I expected something like this," he said. "I knew you would desire to see me, and that is why we came along the rocks."

"Tchigorsky lay on his back puffing at a cigarette.

"Keep your eyes open," he said to Geoffrey. "One can't be too careful. Not that there is any danger. For I've sent those two wretches off on a wild goose chase. They'll never find the she-devil is down with one of her blinding headaches. You wouldn't think she was a woman, would you? I was in a weak state, eh?"

"I shouldn't have supposed she had one," said Geoffrey. "Have you seen her?"

"It was in her company for a long time last night," Tchigorsky explained. "I posed as one of the murderers of Vorki; I gave proofs of my success."

"The forged Garuda stone," Ralph chuckled.

"The same," Tchigorsky said gravely. "It was a magnificent forgery, and calculated to deceive those pious murderers of Lassa. At any rate, I am now the prince, and the prince of the princess, and attached to her subordinates, who are pledged to assist in wiping out the Ravenspur family."

Geoffrey sighed involuntarily. He would have liked to know if this vendetta aimed at his family, but he knew that the question would be useless. Still, he felt that a great deal had been gained during the last few hours.

Have you learnt what the latest

W. N. O. 1974

"Will they let?" Ralph asked.

"Not yet. There is much uneasiness and alarm felt over the recent failure of the expedition to Lassa, and the destruction of their temples will suffice. But first I must have my proof. Without proof I am helpless."

"Find them," Ralph croaked; "and then. Never mind the scandal, never heed what people may say. Bring the matter home, hang those wretches, and we shall never more be troubled by this plague from the East. If I had my way I should shoot the whole lot."

"And be hanged for your pains," Tchigorsky replied. "All my friends there are serious fangs in the crime. I have a fine country of yours, Patience, patience, I shall find out everything in time."

"What?" Ben Heer asked. "I am curious to know," said Geoffrey. "I want to know who was the girl on the cliff with Mrs. May last afternoon, the girl who was such an amazing likeness to Marion. Have you discovered that, Tchigor?"

"That is what I am trying to get at myself," Ben Heer said. "It is a very grave thing. It is one of the mysteries of the campaign."

"You have not been on the point, chiefly because he had no more to say. Yet it was haunting him now as it used to be some time ago. He tied his mind as he made his way down the cliffs after luncheon. And then, his surprise, as he realized the sands he saw a figure rise from the cliff, and he saw it was the girl who was so much like Marion. She was the girl who bore that striking resemblance to Marion. She was dressed, as before, in a blue skirt and red taut-shanter."

With a sudden impulse Geoffrey followed. His feet flew over the heavy sands, making no noise. As he turned the rocky point he saw no signs of the girl, but there on the beach with her back to him, she was sitting on herself, so deeply interested in manipulating her water colors that she did not see Geoffrey till he halted her.

Marion smiled at his excited face.

"See whom?" she asked. "Oh, yes, some girl did pass me; but I was so busy engaged that I did not look up. How do you think my sketch is progressing? I have been at it all night. I have made me a little bet that I should not finish it today."

Geoffrey was hardly listening. He recollected that there had been some little chaff at luncheon on the subject.

"It was the same girl," he said. "The girl who like you, Oh, Marion, how unfortunate you did not look up!"

"It was indeed," Marion replied. She appeared to be deeply interested. He would have given anything to see her sketch. It was a fine one. There were materials in your bag, Geoff, and I will follow up the cliffs. I can't be very much use—I'm afraid—but at any rate I may solve this much of the mystery."

Geoffrey returned to his boat. It seemed very strange to him that Marion should not have seen the girl, and that on each occasion these two should have been so close to each other without meeting till he halted her.

Geoffrey pushed his boat out, got his sails up, and then stood out for the bay. It was very quiet, and no other boats were to be seen. One or two of the upper windows of the castle were visible from there, but no other signs of habitation.

The breeze freshened as Geoffrey reached the open sea. Some distance from a pile of wreckage covered with a mass of seaweed floated on the water.

"I'll anchor here and get my lines out," said Geoffrey.

He huffed and as he did so a puff of wind came from the north. The wind was as nothing, barely enough to bely the sail. Then he looked down and saw that the boat had been almost sawn away. Somebody had cut it nearly through, so that the first puff would sink it.

Geoffrey felt vaguely alarmed and uneasy. He was a good swimmer, and was an indifferent swimmer. The sea was too dangerous, too rough for bathing. There might be further treachery. He sat down and pulled hard at the cable with the idea of returning to the beach again.

Western Canada Exporting Large Quantity of Fish

First Car Lets Boat to Chicago Market From Lesser Slave Lake

Notable developments are taking place this fall in the fisheries of Western Canada. The announcement made by the Grand Trunk Pacific authorities that White Fish is now being shipped in car lots from Lesser Slave Lake, in Northern Alberta, to Chicago.

The construction of the Edmonton, Duvegan & British Columbia Railway northward from the main line of the G.T.P. has made this lake accessible and in its waters are great numbers of fish. Two companies have been formed to carry on the fishing in the lakes and the Canadian Express Company is being called upon to supply special refrigerators for the fish to be shipped to Chicago and thence by way of the Great Northern Pacific to Winnipeg and by connecting lines to Chicago.

A great distributing point for fresh fish, the Chicago market states that it can take all the value fish that can be sent from Western Canada, and the transportation companies, it is expected, will have to enlarge their arrangements next year to meet the growing demand.

Chicago is also taking from Canada large quantities of fresh Prince Rupert fish. The value of the fish industry is very brisk at the new Pacific coast port. Over fifteen million pounds of fish have been shipped since August was Prince Rupert's record. While the salmon end of the industry was the largest part of the business, halibut showed up well, with 2,108,400 pounds of fish being shipped. The month pack for the month represented 12,899,700 pounds of fish, representing 14,000 tons. The month of August was the best of the season, with three-quarters of a million dollars. Of the salmon catch, 4,660 hundred-weight was sent to the coast, the remainder was caught in the canning process, 145,527 cases were taken care of. Capture of Hill No. 60

Turks Fought Desperately Before

A description of the fighting in the Anzac region, on the Gallipoli Peninsula during the last week in August, and the result achieved during this period is given by the Dardanelles correspondent of Reuters' Telegram Company.

The capture of Hill No. 60 was important, says the correspondent, and it is the last crest of the ridge separating the Anzac zone from the plains to the north, and thus constitutes a point of union between the British forces in the Anzac position and the line across the Suvla plain, besides giving access to a Suvla plain, which was the last of the ridge.

The Turks, he says, clung to the hill with the utmost determination, and when they were thrown out of their trenches, would fight their way back again, accepting terrible losses, and finally to reach the lost ground with the result that when the trenches finally were captured they were filled with Turkish dead. It took three days to oust the Turks, and the ground around the hill is still thickly strewn with their bodies and with British soldiers who fell in the assault.

It is computed that the Turks lost 5,000 men in the capture of the position. The Indian brigade and the Canadian Trenchers took part in the fighting, and the Australian and New Zealanders.

The correspondent expresses the opinion that the Turks will not attack the Anzac positions again at the present time. They did succeed, he adds, in sweeping two British battalions off the ridge, but previously had been won by the New Zealanders, but when the Turks crossed the crest into the ravine below they came under the fire of British machine guns.

"They came down in thousands," said a staff officer of the New Zealand division. "They went back in hundreds. They were not taken into the machine gunners' story, but they were killed."

Danger to this part of the line, the correspondent thinks, could only come from physical exhaustion of the troops, as they have made the position virtually impregnable, and even if the Turks were to make an attempt to take it, they would be taken up through space which runs right down the middle of the line, and the sides of the hills are covered with dugouts.

The British batteries still make it extremely difficult for the Turks to move ashore there is now plenty of cover for the men, and since the August victory they have been more and more improved.

Lloyd George has a New Committee

Medical Men Head Body-Increase Productivity of British Workmen

David Lloyd George, the British munitions minister, has appointed a committee, "to consider and advise on the health and physical efficiency of the health and physical efficiency of workers in munitions factories and workshops."

The committee appointed by Lloyd George numbers seven. Sir George Newman, chief medical officer of the board of education, will be the chairman. The other members chosen are Sir Thomas Barlow, physician extraordinary to King George; Dr. Arthur Edwin Boycott, professor of pathology, University of Manchester; Dr. Leonard Bealish, director of the department of applied physiology of the National Health Insurance Institute of Research; Dr. Myra Laborite member of parliament for Manchester, and two women—Mrs. Harold J. Tennant, wife of the parliamentary under-secretary for war, and Miss R. E. Squire.

The committee is apparently the outcome of the recent discussion in the British Association for the Advancement of Science, concerning the best methods of increasing the productivity of workers. In this discussion, it was strongly contended that the health and physical efficiency of workers in munitions factories and workshops was the most important factor in the production of munitions.

Win Four

Victoria Crosses

Bomb Throwers Secure the Much-Coveted Honor

The award of five additional Victoria Crosses is announced in the London Gazette. Four of them were won by "most conspicuous bravery" in connection with bomb throwing exploits, which now constitute such an important feature of trench warfare.

The first of the five additional Victoria Crosses is awarded to Captain Gerald Robert O'Sullivan, First Battalion, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, for the highest award for valor. This is what he did, as narrated in the official report:

"On the night of the 1st-2nd July, 1915, when it was essential that a portion of the trench which had been lost should be regained, Captain O'Sullivan, although not belonging to the ranks at this point, volunteered to lead a party of bomb throwers to effect the recapture."

"The section of the line in the open under very heavy fire, and in order to throw his bombs with greater effect, got up on a trench which had been lost, and to the fire of the enemy occupying the trench. He was finally wounded, but not before his inspiring example had led on his party to make further efforts to recapture the trench."

"On the night of the 18th-19th June 1915, Captain O'Sullivan saved a critical situation in the same locality by his great personal gallantry and good example."

"On the day following this announcement, the London Gazette, in the official casualty list, giving Captain O'Sullivan in the list of 'missing'."

Sergeant James Sommers of the same battalion won the Victoria Cross for the same locality. "When, owing to hostile bombing, some of the troops were ordered to retire, he remained on the spot, and, although he was wounded, he then climbed over into the Turkish trench and bombed the Turks with good effect."

"The section of the line in the open under very heavy fire, and in order to throw his bombs with greater effect, got up on a trench which had been lost, and to the fire of the enemy occupying the trench. Giant Factories to be Constructed in Italy to Emancipate Country

From German Monopoly

Italy's determination not only to fight out the war to a successful finish, but further to ensure industrial emancipation from the German monopolies for the war becomes a thing of the past is illustrated afresh in a colossal scheme, the realization of which the first practical steps have already been taken.

Somewhere in Italy an enormous area of ground has been purchased very cheaply for $400,000, on which 93 factories are to be built immediately for the manufacture of munitions for the present war. The plants will be divided by some two hundred miles from its neighbor. At the outset the staff will comprise three thousand workmen. Once their temporary purpose is achieved the factories will be transformed into laboratories for the production of chemicals and aniline dyes for which Italy has hitherto been almost entirely dependent upon Germany.

REMARKABLE CASE OF Mrs. HAM

Saved Her Life
and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the benefit my health has received from your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a pain in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

Silage Makes Butter

Superiority of Silage Over Dry Feed

For Cows

When clover hay is worth $12 to $15 a ton, silage easily has a food value of $5 per ton. As a matter of fact, many experiments have been made, and it is worth even more than this, but with feeds at the prices which we must pay for them at present we may assume that the silage would return us that much per ton. With a crop of fifty bushels of corn per acre, or ten tons of silage per acre, we may consider that we have 350 worth of feed. One acre of corn silage properly cut and properly placed in the soil will supply enough feed for a cow at the rate of forty pounds of silage daily for 300 days; five cows, 100 days; or four cows, 125 days. At the same time it occupies less space than an equal amount of hay.

An experiment conducted at the Kansas station shows that silage reduced the cost of producing butter fat from 30 cents to 21 cents. In other words, there was a saving of 9 cents per pound. The herds in this case were of sufficient size to give reliable data and eliminating the influence of the cows. The lot which was fed silage gave seven pounds more milk in the summer and 95.5 more in winter per month than did the herd which was fed dry feed. The butter fat was also increased by 45 pounds in summer and 46 pounds in winter. The difference in cost of feed was even more marked. The silage-fed cows saved 60 cents per month in the cost of feed.

At the Ohio station silage produced milk for 88 cents per 100 pounds and butter fat at 13 cents per pound. The grain ration produced milk at $1.05 per 100 and butter fat for 22 cents per pound. The net profits were $5.86 for the silage and $2.46 for the dry feed. The profit from the silage was more than two and one-half times that of the dry feed.

No matter how deep-rooted the corn or wheat may be, it must yield to Holway's Corn Cure if used as directed.

Newfoundland's Contingent

An army administered by a committee of business men and carried out by patriotic soldiers, the contingent, a single general, colonel, or even lieutenant, would be a far more efficient contribution made in men by the little colony of Newfoundland to the cause of the Empire. From the army consists of but 2,000 men, but considering the size of Newfoundland's population, the ratio is a very fair one, to a little over 200,000 inhabitants.

Originally, according to P. T. McGrath, a well known newspaper man in the colony, who is in the capital on departmental business, Newfoundland set out to raise but 500 men, so that its contribution to 1,900 goes far beyond its promise to the British war office. The contingent was trained in Scotland and is said to have been the only non-Scottish force ever allowed to garrison Edinburgh.

German Capitalists Hiding Their Gold
German journals announce that there is at least $250,000,000 in gold still in Germany in private hands. The correspondent of the Echo de Paris at Geneva, however, says that it is very likely that gold already has crossed the frontier. For some time German capitalists have been prudent, putting their gold in places of safety abroad.

IS IT A COUGH?

Ontario Women's Advice.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I am a great believer in Dr. Pierce's medicine. I am speaking from the actual use of them and the great benefit I have derived therefrom. Shortly after my marriage I began ailing, had a very bad cough and got very thin and was run down. My people thought I was going into a decline. They got 'Golden Medical Discovery' and this medicine completely cured me."—Mrs. ADELIA HIBBARD, 20 Cheever St., Hamilton, Ont.

Killbuck, Ont.—"When I was only eleven months old my mother procured 'Golden Medical Discovery' for me, which cured me of congestion of lungs and whooping cough. I have taken it several times myself since and about one year ago I gave it to my two children for whooping cough. They recovered very quickly with no bad results, after taking one bottle. I have recommended it to quite a number of late."—Mrs. W. J. SUGAN, Killbuck, Ont.

The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated, the body is wasted by exhaustion, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in most cases effect a permanent cure.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery today from any medicine dealer; it is a sure cure, no puny, no peevishness, it is given even at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

The Soldier After the War
Many of our new soldiers have come back from the front. There has been a sedentary life. War has literally been an avenue of escape for them. Their training has taken them into the open air, has shown them the physical pleasures of constant muscular activity, has bred in them a distaste for the confinement and torpor of a sedentary existence, perched upon an office stool. These men will never willingly go back to the life of the city, from which they have been suddenly torn—to realize as they are, the senseless, senseless revelation, its tirelessness, its damaging effects upon health, its inadequacy for the war comes to an end—London times.

ROBERT WHITEFIELD,PRINTER AND PUBLISHER.*CROSSFIELD, ALTA., OCT. 20, 1915.*John Nier Brought Up on a Charge of Perjury.

On Wednesday morning, at the Fire Hall, Crossfield, before Inspector Lindsay, of Red Deer, John Nier was charged with committing perjury, in swearing to a Statutory Declaration containing a list of articles he stated to have been destroyed in the fire, when his house was burned down.

Mr. Adams, Solicitor of Calgary, again appeared for Nier.

C. Hultgren gave evidence as to the reading over of the document to accused.
He was not sure whether he asked Nier whether he understood the document read.

Witness showed Nier where to sign it and he did so. Witness had signed documents before in his presence. It did not occur to witness to furnish accused with a copy of the document.

Miss Collings: She knew the accused.
She had been housekeeper for him from December, 1914, to 23rd August, 1915.
She had a good knowledge of everything that was in the house. If there had been nine pair of 4-point Hudson Bay blankets she would have seen them. There were six or eight quilts and eight feather pillows. There was a wood bedstead, it might have been oak; a dresser, hall stand and a small table, they were not all the same colour. There was another wooden bedstead, the table was an extension table. She thought there would be nine or ten chairs. She had never seen a goat-skin robe but a cloth one.
She had never seen pictures to the value of $50, nor books to that amount. There was a trunk belonging to McMillan. She never saw a fancy horse hair bridle, nor had she ever seen a dozen silver knives and forks or two dozen silver spoons, she had never seen any fancy silver brushes.
She had cleaned the house thoroughly while there. The only fruit there when she left was six quarts of rhubarb.

Questioned by Mr. Adams: She put down five or six sealers of strawberries, all the fruit she had put down except the rhubarb, was eaten before she left.
There were five or six dozen empty sealers,
she did not remember how many there were of different sizes. There was a box in a closet off one of the bedrooms, she did not know what had been packed in it. There were some phonograph records in it, they were cylinder records.
There were other things in the box. There were clothes of other rooms that had boxes in them with oddments in such as a bachelor would have. She had had the boxes in the kitchen and accused had gone through them with her, and she had tried to get without some of the things but accused would not let her destroy much of it. She could not call to mind a horsehair bridle. It might have been in McMillan's trunk. That was one place where it might have been and her not see it. She never saw any photographs among the trunk in the boxes. There were some boxes of medicine, etc., on a shelf in accused room. She never looked for any silver knives and forks. She could not say if he had them hidden away, he might have had.

C. Collicutt: Had lived at accused looking after his brother's cattle from 12th of May till 1st Sept., 1915. He had been in all the rooms in the house more than once. He never saw any Hudson Bay blankets. He did not know how many pillows there were. There were two sets of wooden bedsteads, he could not say if they were solid oak. There were somewhere round 10 chairs. He never saw a goat skin robe, he had seen a cloth one.
He had never seen books to the amount of $50, nor pictures to a like amount.
There was a trunk in his room that belonged to McMillan. After Miss Collings left there was one suitcase. He never saw a horse hair bridle, nor silver knives and forks and spoons, nor two sets of fancy hair and clothes brushes. They might have been there without him seeing them. He did not know if the trunk was locked.

By Mr. Adams: Witness was away a few times for the night while there. He had a room that he called his. The only things he could speak of was what he saw while there. There was an ample supply of bedding. The cloth robe he saw might be worth $8. He never saw seven beds made up at one time.

Corp. Birch: Stationed at Crossfield.
Went to the accused place on the 23rd
Oct. He went to search among the ruins while there, to see if he could find the remains of any silver knives, forks or spoons mentioned in the document, but could not find any. All the remains he saw were a set of iron bedsteads. There was evidence of someone having been there before he got there. There was a rake there and evidence of its having been used. He had executed a search warrant previous to this one. He put in a list as to the articles found on the premises on this occasion. Some of the articles in this list were similar to those stated by the accused in the Statutory Declaration as destroyed. Some of the articles were new. This list was made out by Detective Nicholson and witness checked it over. He had never been to the place prior to the fire to make an examination.

Detective Nicholson, of Edmonton: He along with Corp. Birch went to the premises of the accused premises and executed a search warrant. They took a list of the articles found there and afterwards made a type written copy of them that he gave to the Corporal, and which he has produced. That was on Thanksgiving day. He went over a part of the ruins, a part he should think had been the kitchen, nothing had been disturbed then. Corp. Birch did not search over the ruins. The buildings were totally destroyed except the foundations. He had never been there prior to that. He saw an old rake there at the time.
Inspector Lindsay remained accused to the Criminal court at Calgary.
